“ Jerry was the unexpected friend, quick with the smile and the handshake, always unassuming. He always had a moment to hear how things were going, and a smile to let you know he cared. I knew when I saw him we were going to have a good conversation, I would never know where we would start but the world's problems could be solved in a matter of 30 minutes. He will be greatly missed, friends are truly hard to find, and he was a friend to Lexington and those that knew him.
