“ Polly and my mother, Doris Lewis, were best friends at work. She was a dear, dear person who lived a good long life and leaves plenty of friends and family to remember her.

“ Mrs. Polly was the kindest, sweetest person I have ever known. She was generous to me when I was struggling with raising three children. Later in life, we worshipped together at Lexington Church of God where she was a beacon of love to all. The world's loss is heaven's gain. We should all strive to be more like Mrs. Polly.
