“ I'm so sad! He had been on my mind for some reason and I finally used the internet to try to reconnect and I'm sad to find this! Victor was one of my first boyfriends when I was 13 or so and when was 15 and living in Florida, actually stole my uncle's car and drove to Tenn. with my dog to see him. lol Rest in peace my old friend. You are missed! We will meet again! Blessings

“ The many memories keep flooding back and my heart aches for the loss of one of the most important people that I've ever met. Victor taught me so many things: hockey! And I'm still a huge fan...so many Riverkings games that we went to, with him screaming and laughing(some of the parents didn't like our overzealous actions!!), MUSIC, soooo much music and all varieties....Dinosaur Jr and Sebadoh, Mike Watt, Uncle Tupelo, the GRATEFUL DEAD and of course Widespread Panic...which lead to alot of traveling(NOLA, Colorado, all over the deep south and of course, Oregon and the West Coast)and new, wonderful friends. He made me stronger and braver and my love for him could move mountains. There is no way to express my condolences to the full extent that I feel, I am do very sorry for your loss. I am sending all my love to you, the family, and I will keep Victor's memory alive in my heart and mind.

“ I literally just spoke his name to my middle son about 3 weeks ago. My son as a musician was covering some music of the same genre. I told him to do himself a favor and look up the band Fugazi. Music Victor introduced me to way back when... I've pondered on this for a couple of days. He made my transition of moving To Tennessee much easier .. When we dated in high school... He once called me the "coolest girl" he knew. We parted on good terms back in those high school days. But the days of sitting in his room, listening to music, and coming from Florida, it was a huge skate scene. I sat on alot of curbs and watched him throw a skate board or two ... He had a soft heart that many didn't get to see. Much love to his family during these days “ Victor was such a wonderful and interesting man. His love and care for unwanted and neglected animals was unparalleled. My husband, our children, my mother and I will miss him forever.
